

Gender equality and women's economic empowerment

gender equality and women's economic empowerment

Measures that address the impacts of climate change, disasters and environmental degradation would be ineffective if they do not recognise the agency of people at risk and support them to acknowledge and apply their own knowledge and context specific solutions. The inclusion and empowerment women, youth, people with disabilities in development processes is vital to ensuring local solutions that address the needs of all.

We have undertaken the following projects in this area:

Women's resilience to disasters and climate change

November 2019 - May 2020. Consultant to assist in facilitating consultations in Kiribati, Vanuatu, Marshall Islands for the Women's Resilience to Disasters Programme. Client: UN Women

November 1, 2019

Gender and Agricultural Value Chains

In progress Review of existing literature on entry points for strengthening gender and social inclusion within agricultural value chains in the Pacific Client: SPC, Suva

November 1, 2019

Human mobility in the context of climate change

August- September, 2019 Review and finalisation of gender and human mobility research, and development of a toolkit module Client: Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ)

August 1, 2019

Women's Resilience to Disaster and Climate Change

In progress Leading the consultations and programme design for a UN Women programme on Women's Resilience to Disasters and Climate Change Client: UN Women, Suva

June 1, 2019

Project management training delivery

March 1, 2019 Period: March 2019 - June 2019 Capacity building training in project management and resource mobilisation for grantees of the Fiji Women's Fund. Client: Fiji Women's Fund, Suva

March 1, 2019